Register

We do have a page for registration of user and for log in because we have to keep records of our users al with us.

Here we used some form validations like user when register him/her self, he has to input hi/her information as per the requirement. User has to validate his/her data and an okay e-mail with his/her name.

If user inputs his/her password and then in confirm password field, he/she has to again input the same password and if password doesn't math then an alert box will generate mentioning that "Password doesn't match". Then input fields will automatically become empty, user has to input valid data again to register his or herself at our store's website.

If user successfully fulfilled the criteria and there is not data invalidation there then we will welcome our user.

Then there is a log in form also for our previous users.

There is also input data validation there like email must be with @ and an address with .com with it so user has to input it accordingly.

There alert boxes generated after valid inputs and invalid inputs are with the help of java script.

There is some dynamicity in the form. On entering in to sign up & log in page, user will see the form of registration and if he/she will just click on login then the login form will translate onx-axis into the white background translating register form to the right side on main background. Here CSS's attribute translate is used with the help of java script of course.

Contact Us page

_This page is for user's convenience. If anyone from anywhere wants to reach us so we have provided a form with queries input for which we have used text area tag. User can fill up the form and submit their queries and soon he/she will get their queries answered.
